LISHMAN FUNERAL

The funeral of the late Robert Lishman took place from his late residence, Keesomoku street, Makiki, yesterday afternoon. There were services at the cemetery in Nuuanu as well. Hundreds of friends were present at the ceremonies. The services at the house were held in the parlor where the casket, covered with floral offerings, was placed. Rev. W. M. Kincaid of Central Union church officiated. A choir consisting of the following, furnished the music: Mrs. J. T. McDonald, soprano; Mrs. Cornelia B. Damon, alto; Charles Elston, tenor, and Prof. A. B. Ingalls, bass, sang beautifully "Abide With Me," and "Just As I Am." The minister read the full Congregational service of the dead with much feeling.

The casket was borne to the hearse by the pall-bearers—J. O. Carter, Col. George W. Macfarlane, Robert Catton, W. F. Allen, John F. Soper and F. J. Wilhelm. Close behind them came the sons and daughters of the deceased. The widow did not go to the cemetery in Nuuanu. The funeral arrangements were in charge of John Lucas, an old friend of the deceased.

Willie Roth is now the tennis champion of the islands, having on the Pacific Tennis Club courts yesterday afternoon defeated Frank C. Atherton, last year's champion in a hard fought series of sets, the playing balancing so well that each contestant won two sets and the final set became a necessity. The final score stood, 6-1, 2-6, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1.

The first set was won easily by Roth, his opponent showing up in very weak form. However, in the second set Atherton suddenly cast off his seeming weakness and blossomed forth in all his old time strength, rushing back and forth and sending the balls past Roth at will. This got he kept up and pulled out the set in his favor.

In the third set, Roth showed signs of letting down which was not to be wondered at when his hard battle with Elston on the previous day is taken into consideration. However, he did some very good playing, Atherton pursued the same tactics he had in the second set, sending back stroke after stroke that Roth could try for but not return, finally winning the set and turning the odds in his favor.

When the two crack players took their places for the fourth set, it really looked as if Atherton would again be the champion. Roth pulled himself together for a hard struggle and he had it. The play was fast, furious and brilliant, some of the rallies lasting for eight or ten strokes at close quarters. Roth was more wary and he kept his opponent running back and forth on the court until it seemed as if he must drop from sheer exhaustion. The score finally stood 5-6 with the advantage neither way. Roth stopped serving a slow ball and put in a number of swift ones which Atherton was just able to return but not to place with his favorite stroke down the side lines. This gave Roth opportunities to "kill" the balls which he did repeatedly. By dint of hard fighting, he finally won the necessary two straight games and the score stood two sets apiece.

Interest was intense in the deciding set. When the two players took their places on the court after a rest of about ten minutes, Roth, contrary to all expectations, showed up in better form than at any time during the whole match. He was full of life and activity and wore a confident expression. Atherton, on the other hand, was perceptibly worn out and played only by streaks. Roth pushed his advantage excellently, working Atherton all over the court and finally piling up his score to 5-0. Atherton then pulled out one game which saved him a "love" set and then Roth, in less time than it takes to tell, won the next game, the set and the championship of the islands.

Entries for the men's doubles closed yesterday afternoon and the draw took place last night, resulting as follows: Dr. H. Bicknell (B.) and C. G. Bockus (B.) vs. J. Waterhouse (P.) and D. Howard Hitchcock (P.); A. R. Cunha (B.) and A. M. Nowell (B.) vs. S. G. Wilder (P.) and I. S. Dillingham (P.); J. H. Harrison (B.) and C. L. Girvin (B.) vs. M. A. Cheek (B.) and D. W. Anderson (B.); F. W. Grimwood and W. Macfarlane vs. W. P. Roth and W. F. Dillingham (P.); E. A. Mott-Smith (B.) and B. L. Marx (B.) vs. C. A. Elston (B.) and L. C. King (B.); C. H. Cooke (P.) and W. H. Babbitt (P.) vs. H. C. Carter (B.) and O. Lansing (B.).

The preliminary and first rounds of the doubles will be played this afternoon, the time and place of the games being as follows:

Pacific Courts: At 4 p. m.—Bicknell and Bockus vs. Waterhouse and Hitchcock; Cunha and Nowell vs. Wilder and Dillingham.

Beretania Courts: At 4 p. m.—Harrison and Girvin vs. Cheek and Anderson; Grimwood and Macfarlane vs. Roth and Dillingham.

The above are all preliminary round games and at 5 p. m. the first round will be played, the draw being as follows:

Beretania Courts—The winners of the Harrison-Girvin Cheek-Anderson game vs. the winners of the Grimwood-Macfarlane Roth-Dillingham game.

The semi-final will be played tomorrow, the final on Friday and on Saturday the winners of the final will meet the present champions, E. R. Adams and A. T. Brock, who will be called upon to defend their claim to the title and trophy.
